District of Columbia Pretrial Services Agency

The District of Columbia Pretrial Services Agency is a Federal Government agency servicing the DC Superior and US District Courts. PSA provides information on defendants arrested for criminal charges in DC to judicial officers to be used in setting release conditions. The agency is also responsible for monitoring these conditions by providing release options and services to the Court and defendants.

Interns are involved in:

- conducting pretrial interviews;
- verifying information provided by defendants in pretrial interviews;
- supervision of defendants released into the custody of the Agency;
- and referring defendants to appropriate social service organizations.

Internship Positions are Unpaid

Application Deadline:

Fall Semester –August 31, 2004

Spring Semester –January 11, 2005
